Now I find it easier to follow a reducing plan—since using K-12 to help control my appetite I lost weight and now wear a dress two sizes smaller."

(2.) Miss H. H. of N. Y. City writes: "For years I have been looking for something to help me control my appetite and never succeeded until I heard of K-12 from my doctor. After taking K-12 for only one day my appetite decreased, in one day I found it helped my will power—I soon was able to stay on a sensible diet—I found K-12 helping me control my appetite—I went from a size 18 dress to a size 12. I can't thank the doctor enough for introducing me to K-12."

(3.) Miss H. W. of Bronx, N. Y., writes: "I have tried many advertised things and could not get up enough will power to stay on a diet and lose weight. Finally a radio announcer got me to use K-12. I found that K-12 helped cut my appetite so I was able to stay on a diet and I lost 18 lbs. I think K-12 is wonderful."

Question: WHEN IS A MAGAZINE NOT A MAGAZINE?
Answer: WHEN IT'S A BOOK!
The Post Office advises us after all these years that for a highly technical reason Crossword Magazines do not comply with Post Office regulations governing the shipment of magazines. All Crossword publishers will be required to ship magazines at book rate instead of the 2nd class rate which we have always used. Our shipping costs will more than double. Most other Crossword publications have been selling at 35¢, for a long while. Much against our will, we are forced to raise our price, too, starting with the January issue. However, UNIVERSAL at 35¢ will be a much improved magazine (or book), containing better paper and an increased volume of the superb material which you have always enjoyed.

How You Can Master GOOD ENGLISH

. . . in 15 Minutes a day

THOUSANDS of persons make mistakes in their everyday English—and don't know it. It is surprising how many persons fail in spelling such common words as "business," "judgment," "beneficiary," and "receive"; say "between you and I" instead of "between you and me"; use "who" for "whom"; and mispronounce the simplest words. And it is equally astonishing how few know whether to use one or two "c's" or "m's" or "s's" (as in "recommend" or "disappoint"), or when to use commas in order to make their meaning clear. Most persons use only common words—colorless, flat, ordinary. Their speech and their letters are lifeless, humdrum.

What Does Your English Say About You?

Does your English help or hinder you? Every time you talk, every time you write, you show what you are. When you use the wrong word, when you mispronounce a word, when you punctuate incorrectly, when you use commonplace words, you handicap yourself enormously. English, the very tool you should use to improve your business or social position, holds you back. And you don't realize it, for people are too polite to tell you about your mistakes.

But now Sherwin Cody offers you a common sense method of acquiring a mastery of English in only a few minutes a day. It's so easy to stop making the mistakes in English which have been hindering you and learn to present your ideas clearly and forcefully on all occasions—without even thinking about it.

What Cody Did at Gary

For years Mr. Cody studied the problem of creating instinctive habits of using good English. Some time ago he was invited to teach English to all upper-grade pupils in Gary, Indiana. Mr. Cody secured more improvement in these pupils in five weeks than previously had been obtained by similar pupils in two years under the old methods.

100% Self-Correcting Device

The basic principle of Mr. Cody's method is habit-forming. Suppose he himself were standing forever at your elbow. Every time you made a mistake, suppose you could hear him whisper: "That is wrong, it should be thus and so." In a short time you would habitually use the correct form and the right words.

Mr. Cody's patented 100% Self-Correcting Device does exactly this. It is his silent voice behind you, ready to speak whenever you commit an error. It finds your mistakes and concentrates on them. You are not drilled upon anything you already know; and there are no rules to memorize.

The study of English has been made so simple that no more than fifteen minutes a day is required—and not of study, but of fascinating practice! Those who take advantage of Mr. Cody's method gain something so priceless that it cannot be measured in terms of money. They gain a facility of speech that marks them as educated persons in whatever society they find themselves. They gain self-confidence and self-respect. As for material reward, the importance of good English in the race for success cannot be over-estimated. Surely no one can advance far without it.

THE BIG LIZARD

by HARVEY STOWE

The early Spanish explorers used to send back lurid descriptions of the "terrible lizards" they found. These so-called "lizards" were what we call alligators today. Alligators, which really are members of the crocodile family, used to exist in almost unbelievable numbers as far north as the Carolinas and west to the Rio Grande. But there was a time when the alligator was in great demand for his hide. A quarter of a million of the beasts were killed yearly and it was on the verge of being hunted into oblivion. Laws have since been passed to protect them. And conversationists give two good reasons for protecting alligators. Not only are they important tourist attractions, but in vast open ranges of subtropical Florida—where there are just two seasons, the wet and dry—'gator holes may be the only permanent, year-round water supply.

The alligator digs its cave in the bank of a pond or a stream or under the roots with its teeth, and loosening the dirt with its shovel-like snout. Then it kicks this material behind it with its feet and swirls it away with its tail. The result is a broad, deep pool in front of each cave, which serves as a sort of reservoir. Here, during the dry months, cattle and wildlife come to quench their thirst.

Since they've been protected by law, alligators in Florida have increased in numbers and moved in closer to towns. Some alligators are probably harmless, but one longer than six feet has an enormous appetite, tremendous power and a short temper. They're not the slow-moving, sluggish creatures they appear to be, but can turn and attack with lightning speed. An angry 'gator hisses and goes for its enemy with a short, fast lunge, its mouth wide open. But out in the wild, it avoids trouble. At the slightest sound, it usually drops into the water and disappears.

The big alligators spend most of their time in their caves, leaping only to prowl for food or a mate. During the spring mating season, the bulls wander from pond to pond. This is the time of year when they're really heard from. Standing in shallow water, the bull inhales deeply and then lifts his head high and lets out a booming noise that sounds like a roar of the lion combined with the bellow of a bull. Presumably this is the challenge to other bulls to battle. On a still night, it can be heard a mile away.

In the alligator's lipless leering mouth there are from 70 to 80 conical teeth. Small prey are crushed and swallowed whole. But something too big to swallow in one piece is swiftly and violently ripped to shreds. When it closes its jaw, it has a vise-like grip on most anything, but the muscles for opening its mouth are unbelievably weak. Men who wrestle 'gators before audiences depend on this weakness.

The strangest fact about alligators is that they are found in just two places in the world. In the southern United States and along the Yangtze River Valley in China. Why did these creatures survive in two such widely separated places? It still remains an unsolved riddle.

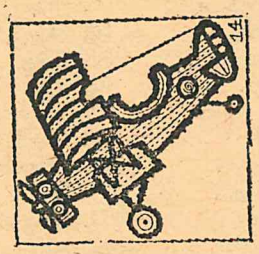
CRISIS

by WILFRED WRIGHT



The small but sturdy plane circled the airfield just once and then swiftly nosed into the late afternoon sun. Ralph Capper piloted the Kellit Company's plane on the New York to Chicago run. The 26-year old redhead was a careful, capable airman, though he had been certified as a pilot for only 14 months.

He had two passengers today. One was Arthur Ehrenwald, Kellit's Chief Comptroller, a tall, greying, slightly reserved man; the other was Bob Telfair, the company's Assistant Advertising Manager, thirty-fivish, of Brooks Brothers' cut.

The twin-engine, five passenger plane usually traveled with at least two other passengers, but pressing business affairs in New York had kept all but Art and Bob at the home office.

Art settled down at a makeshift desk with some of his work; Bob read an afternoon newspaper. The engines droned lazily. The pilot headed his ship over Manhattan Island, and then over the northern New Jersey industrial area. He had reached an altitude of 7,000 feet as prescribed by Air Route Traffic Control out of New York and he was moving along at a cruising speed of about 200 miles per hour. The countryside below changed swiftly. New York and New Jersey were behind them. Now below appeared the foothills of the Pennsylvania Alleghenies; humpbacked ridges that rose abruptly from the floors of dense forests.

Then trouble. Their Number One engine sputtered for one short moment, then it stopped. There was no warning, no advance notice of any kind. The propeller stood lifeless on the engine and already the aircraft began to lose altitude. Only slightly at first, but then the plane began to nose over and head for the dense wooded area below. A spin, a crash, seemed imminent.

Pilot Capper could not and did not help the situation. Literally frozen with fear, he sat up rigidly, staring blankly at the controls. He was transfixed by the sudden prospects of a death-dealing accident.

It was Bob Telfair who took control of the situation. "Take it easy, take it easy," he told Capper. His voice was calm and easy. "You know what to do," he said. "Listen," he continued, "if you can't land this thing, on one engine, I can. Don't worry, we'll come out of this just fine; you know what to do," he repeated.

Slowly Capper's hand moved to the controls. He found the trouble almost immediately. The Number One engine roared again.

Four hours later they landed in Chicago, the incident a terrifying memory. They discussed the mishap as they taxied toward their terminal, and Art turned to Bob and said, "I didn't know you knew how to run one of those things. But it sure was a lucky break for us that you did."

Then quietly Bob replied, "I don't know the first thing about airplanes."

THE WEAKER SEX

by HILDA GOODING

At the present time, there are one million and a half more women in the United States than men. The Census Bureau predicts that by 1975 women will outnumber men by perhaps as much as 3,600,000.

One explanation for the preponderance of women is the fact that American females have developed a habit of outliving the men, and by a steadily widening margin. At the turn of the century the average American woman lived two years and ten months longer than the average man. Today she is outliving him by more than six years. If she is typical, she will not die until she is a little over 73 years and six months old. Compare this with the men in her family who can expect to last only a few months past 67.

There are good reasons why women live longer. The fact is, men, except for their greater muscular strength actually are the weaker sex. A girl is born with two X-chromosomes—the minute hereditary particles that substantially influence the fate of the organism—while boys have only one. Biologists believe that nature planned it that way to insure the carrying on of the race. A pregnant woman needs special reserves of strength. Her heart, for example, must be strong enough to meet both the ordinary needs of her own body and the developing fetus. Her lungs must supply her blood with extra oxygen. Every organ in her body must work at a higher pitch. Because of this, one authority claims, women are provided with "better internal medicine chests" than men.

Almost every disease kills more men than women. The mortality rate from cancer, for example, is about six percent higher for men. Diseases of the heart, blood vessels and kidneys cause about two and a half times as many deaths among men as they do in women. The death rate from heart diseases is 75 percent higher with males than with females.

The difference between the life spans of both man and woman is widening because it is easier to be a woman than a man in the middle of this twentieth century. The modern American man is subject to special pressures and frustrations. The shift in the pattern of the American family includes new concepts of the husband and wife relationship—the raising of children—and the management of the home. All these things have undermined the American man's sense of security by taking away his former role as the undisputed authority in the house. He is frequently ridden by all sorts of anxieties including the fear of sexual inadequacy. With advancing age, a decline in his potency adds to his deep-seated insecurity, while woman takes it in stride. A woman can also set her own pace. To remain at home—or take a job, a woman has freedom of choice.

The repercussions of a growing majority of women upon our society are bound to be formidable. In years to come, their influence on social and political action is bound to grow in contrast to man's constantly shrinking role of leadership. The weaker sex? Not by a long shot.

59 DUAL-CROSTIC

AUTHOR: SCHOPENHAUER

The first forty years of life give us the text; the next thirty supply the commentary on it.

60 DUAL-CROSTIC

AUTHOR: THOREAU
WORK: WALDEN

I would rather sit on a pumpkin and have it all to myself than to be crowded on a velvet cushion.

61 DUAL-CROSTIC

AUTHOR: H. D. THOREAU
WORK: CONSCIENCE

I love a life whose plot is simple,
And does not thicken with every pimple;
A soul so sound no sickly conscience binds it,
That makes the universe no worse than't finds it.

62 DUAL-CROSTIC

AUTHOR: BERT LESTON TAYLOR
WORK: OLD STUFF

If I go to see the play,
Of the story I am certain;
Promptly it gets under way
With the lifting of the curtain.
Builded all that's said and done
On the ancient recipe—
'Tis the same old two and one;
A and B in love with C.

63 DUAL-CROSTIC

AUTHOR: (MADELINE S.) BRIDGES
WORK: LIFE'S MIRROR (Verse 5)

For life is the mirror of king and slave
'Tis just what we are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have
And the best will come back to you.

64 DUAL-CROSTIC

AUTHOR: M. de MONTAIGNE
WORK: ON NAMES

They say it is good to have a good name, that is to say, credit and reputation; but it is also an advantage to have a good-sounding name, and one that is easy to pronounce and remember . . .

65 DUAL-CROSTIC

AUTHOR: LAMB
WORK: GRACE BEFORE MEAT

The custom of saying grace at meals had, probably, its origin in the early times of the world . . . when dinners where precarious things, and a full meal was . . . more than a common blessing.
